OF THE
STATE OF OREGON,

FOR 1865.

SALEM, OREGON:
HENRY L. PITTOCK, STATE PRINTER.
1865.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT.

HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF OREGON,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Salem, Sept. 30, 1865. }

HIS EXCELLENCY,
ADDISON C. GIBBS,
GOVERNOR OF OREGON:

SIR:—I have the honor herewith to submit my Annual Report for the year 1865.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your ob't servant,

CYRUS A. REED,
Adj. Gen. State of Oregon.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF OREGON,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SALEM, September, 30th, 1865. }

To His Excellency, Addison C. Gibbs, Governor of the State of Oregon:

SIR:—I have the honor to again submit to you my Annual Report, and however humble a part we may have taken in the great events of 1865, may we not well feel proud that we have had our day and generation in an age like this. Allow me here to congratulate you upon the termination of a rebellion that has no parallel in the world's history, and which has hung like a black cloud over our nation for the last four years, and although we have been far removed from the thunder and shock of battle, and have not been able to take an active part in the great drama, yet cannot we feel that as a people we have done our duty.

We certainly have been fortunate in avoiding any civil strife which has threatened at various times to involve the Pacific coast. Not that I apprehend any considerable number of the people of Oregon have contemplated any such action, yet it is a well known fact to your Excellency, that an element has existed in our midst entirely antagonistical to our Government and in strong sympathy with the rebellion, and only wanting opportunity to spread devastation and death through the land. This could hardly have been otherwise when we reflect that the people of the Pacific coast were emigrants from every part of the United States, and many were connected by every association and kindred tie with those in active rebellion against us,—and yet, to the honor of many a Southerner be it said, that they loved country more than kindred, and the Union better than any local part,—and should we not now strive to forget that we have any other than a common ancestry, a common country and a common destiny.

FIRST REGIMENT OREGON VOL. INFANTRY.

With the military operations of Oregon since my last Annual Report, you have been closely connected and have taken an active part. First among these was the raising and putting into the field an entire regiment of Infantry. On the 20th day of October, 1864, your Excellency received the following telegram :

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., October 20th, 1864.

To Governor A. C. Gibbs :—Salem :

I have the honor to request under special authority granted to that effect from the War Department, that a Regiment of Infantry be raised in the State of Oregon as soon as possible.

(Signed,) IRWIN McDOWELL,
Maj.Gen. Commanding.

At this time, fortunately the Legislature was in session, and although having just passed a "Relief Bill," very justly granting five dollars per month additional pay to the Regiment of Cavalry already in the field, immediately passed a "Bounty Law," giving one hundred and fifty dollars to every volunteer who should enlist for three years in any arm of the service in this State. In addition to this bounty offered by the State, private bounties were offered by individuals and communities sometimes amounting to a large sum. This gave an impetus to the recruiting service, not so much on account of the amount given as to the interest taken by the people of Oregon, conclusively showing that they were not wanting in patriotism, but only awaiting an opportunity.

On the 22d of October, the first recruiting officers were appointed, yet it was nearly a week before any of them could be mustered in and open a recruiting office. Lieutenant Charles Lafollett, now Captain of Company A, was the first to present a full company ready to muster, and thereby making Polk and Benton the banner counties of the State. Capt. Lafollett was but little over a week in enlisting his full quota; in quick succession follow companies B, C, D, E and F; and I would here notice that wherever Volunteer Militia Companies had been organized, there was but little trouble in recruiting men for active service.

FIRST REGIMENT OREGON VOL. CAVALRY.

The call to fill up the old Regiment of Cavalry was not made until the proper season for recruiting had very nearly passed, so that when the news reached us of the downfall of the rebellion, and orders were issued to suspend recruiting, only some one hundred and eighty men had enlisted for the Cavalry service, and a portion of these had enlisted in, and been transferred from the Infantry Regiment. It therefore became necessary to consolidate the 1st Oregon Cavalry into a Battalion organization, as a large portion of the old Cavalry had been mustered out of service.

THE OREGON MILITIA.

The Volunteer Militia of this State is not in as prosperous a condition as it was one year ago, owing partly to its depletion by volunteers for active service and partly from a want of interest taken by the citizens in their organization.

The review which took place at the State Fair, held September, 1864, was on the whole a creditable affair, and had it not have been for some misunderstanding on the part of the officers of the State Fair, nothing would have occurred prejudicial to the military being present on such occasions, and in case of any future review, should it occur in conjunction with the State Fair, I would most earnestly recommend that the ground used by the Military have no connection with the Fair grounds.

That one would add to the interest of the other, I have not the least doubt, provided both were properly managed. Twelve companies were present at this review; six companies of infantry, four companies of cavalry and two companies of artillery. They were organized for drill purposes, each in its respective arm of the service; many evolutions of the line being successfully performed.

The competition for the prize for the best drilled companies of the various arms of the service was an interesting feature.

The following gentlemen were by your Excellency appointed to award the prizes:

Col. S. A. Cornelius,
Capt. L. S. Scott, Co. "D," 4th Cal. Vol. Infantry.
Lieut. James Davidson, Co. "D," 4th Cal. Vol. Infantry.

The Committee made the following decisions:

INFANTRY.

Co. "A," (Marion Rifles,) 2d Reg't, 2d Brig.....1st Prize.
Co. "B" (Washington Guards,) 1st Reg't, 2d Brig.....2d do.

CAVALRY.

Co. "D," (Lancaster Light Horse,) 3d Reg't, 2d Brig.....1st Prize.
Co. "E," 3d Reg't, 2d Brig.....2d do.

ARTILLERY.

Co. "B," (Salem Light Battery,) 2d Reg't, 2d Brig.....1st Prize.
Co. "D," (Portland Artillery,) 1st Reg't, 2d Brig.....2d do.

This competition for prizes should be encouraged, and men should be selected of known military knowledge and as much as possible strangers to all the companies. The inspection of these companies was reported to your Excellency at the time of the inspection verbally, and as the arms and equipments, such as had been furnished, were all in good condition, I deemed it sufficient. From some cause, perhaps from many causes, the people of Oregon have not taken, nor do now take that interest in military organizations that they should. Almost every individual will admit that we should have a well organized Militia,—they believe that it is for their interest,—yet they want some person other than themselves to work for the organization. Others believe that some other system than that which the law provides should be adopted, there are a very few who believe there should be no law relative to the Militia, and as a general thing that few are a class of people who would prefer no law upon any subject. To that class I would not appeal.

That a well organized militia is essential to the well being of a Republic like ours, is shown from the opinions of wise and prominent men, from the days of George Washington to the present time; and if there has been any one thing more convincing than another, it has been the experience of the last four years.

To this end, I invoke the opinions of the immortal Washington—the patriotic Adams—of Jefferson, the apostle of liberty—of Madison, the framers of the Constitution—of the wise Monroe, the father of the much-loved American doctrine—and last, though not least, the voice of Andrew Jackson—conveying to their countrymen, with their latest breath, the deep earnestness of their convictions of the necessity to our national welfare of giving the Militia all possible efficiency.

Washington, in his first annual address, says: "A free people ought not only to be armed but disciplined, to which end a uniform and well digested plan is requisite." He continues to repeat these sentiments in his second, his third and every other message through to his eighth annual address, when he says:

"My solicitude to see the Militia of the United States placed on an efficient basis, has been so often and so ardently expressed, that I shall barely call the subject to your view on the present occasion."

John Adams, in his message in 1797, recommends to the consideration of that body, a revision of the laws for organizing, arming and disciplining the Militia, to render that natural and safe defence of the nation efficacious.

Jefferson, in his first annual message, says: "Uncertain, as we all must be, of the particular point in our circumference where an enemy may choose to invade us, the only force which can be ready at every point and competent to oppose them is the body of neighboring citizens, as formed into a Militia." In continuing to dilate upon this subject, he says: "Nor should we now, or at any time, separate until we can say we have done everything for the Militia that we could do were an enemy at our doors." Jefferson also, like Washington, continues to call the attention of Congress to these important measures, and in his eighth annual message, he says: "For a people who are free, and mean to remain so, a well organized and armed Militia is their best security."

Madison, in his first annual address, speaks of an armed and well trained Militia as the "Firmest bulwark of Republics," and so Madison, like his predecessors, in every message speaks of the Militia as being the palladium of our national safety.

President Monroe, in his inaugural address says: "But it ought always to be held prominently in view that the safety of these United States and of every thing dear to a free people, must depend in an eminent degree on the Militia." And in his seventh annual message says: "As the defence, and even the liberties of the country must depend in time of imminent danger upon the Militia, it is of the highest importance that it be well organized, armed and disciplined."

John Quincy Adams also spoke in the same tones, conveying the same sentiments and the same opinions.

Jackson, in his first inaugural address, says: "Considering standing armies as dangerous to free governments in time of peace, I shall not enlarge our present establishment, nor disregard that salutary lesson of political experience, which teaches that the military should be held subordinate to civil power—the gradual increase of our navy, whose flag has displayed in distant climes our skill in navigation and our fame in arms; the preservation of our forts and arsenals and dockyards, and the introduction of progressive improvements in the discipline and science of both branches of our military service are so plainly prescribed by prudence that I should be excused for omitting their mention sooner than enlarging on their importance; but the bulwarks of our defence is the national Militia, which, in the present state of our intelligence and population must render it invincible. Therefore, to any system calculated to strengthen this natural safeguard of the country, I shall cheerfully lend all the aid in my power."

Had these wise admonitions of our fathers been heeded, this terrible rebellion would never have attained the magnitude it did, and we to day would not be mourning over brothers slain in battle, and our land filled with widows and orphans.

Permit me here to make a few extracts from reports made by persons of authority who have been intimately connected with our country's peril during the rebellion:

Brig. Gen. E. C. Maura, Adj. Gen. of Rhode Island, in his able report for the year 1863, closes with the following remarks: "The importance of having a well organized Militia was seen in the facility with which the Governor was able at any moment to call out a large or small force of disciplined men, fully prepared to meet any emergency. Without the Militia, his reliance would have been upon the chartered companies; a call upon which would necessarily have elicited but a feeble response, from the fact that the strength of said

"companies have been very much reduced by the absence of a great number of their men serving in the field. The organization of all Militia has been effected with but little expense, compared to the great amount of labor performed, and I close with the hope that a system so successfully inaugurated may be continued."

Col. Allen C. Fuller, Adjutant General of Illinois, in his report for the year 1862, says: "The great source of Military power in this country, then, is the Militia. It may be drafted and compelled to serve a specified time. Its organization belongs to the States, respectively, and calls for it are made upon the States, not upon individuals. To encourage and maintain an organized Militia is the duty of every State, since the maintenance and supremacy of the laws of the United States, may, at any time, depend upon such organizations."

Colonel C. K. Holliday, Adjutant General of Kansas, in his report for the year 1864, says: "I cannot conclude this portion of my report without referring to the uniform soldierly bearing and meritorious conduct of the Militia—the citizen soldiery—of Kansas. From the earliest period of our Territorial history down to the present time, the Militia have borne a high character for bravery and military prowess." Again he says: "When the history of our State shall be impartially and correctly written, that page which describes the sacrifices and sufferings, together with the lofty patriotism and true heroism of the State Militia, will be the most luminous and conspicuous of them all."

Adjutant General John T. Sprague, of the State of New York, in his report for 1863, says: "For more than twenty years the militia laws of this State were the subject of ridicule; but in spite of opposition and discouragement, a few officers of rank had the intelligence and firmness to uphold those laws, and zealously persevered in their duties regardless of the obloquy thrown upon them. The injunction, 'In time of peace prepare for war,' has appealed with fearful truthfulness to every citizen of this State within the passed year. The details connected with the movements of the State troops to Pennsylvania in June last, in accordance with a request from the Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War, and His Excellency Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, is interesting and instructive. It shows the necessity of a complete military organization and equipment throughout the State. It was these regiments, comprising men of every vocation, who, abandoning their homes upon a short notice, took their muskets and knapsacks, and with cheerful promptness and obedience to orders, contributed materially to defeat the enemy, and thus saved a neighboring State from devastation, and guaranteed peace and security to their own."

Generals McDowell and Alvord encouraged the organization of the Militia of this State.

The opinions of many more eminent men might be given in favor of a well organized Militia, but I deem the above sufficient. That other States are alive in this matter is equally evident.

A few days ago I received the following letter from the Adjutant General of California:

[COPY.]

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, 1865. }

GENERAL:

In reply to your communication of the 12th, asking how the Volunteer Militia of this State are progressing, whether it is improving or going down, &c.

I have the honor to say, that although, perhaps, there may not be quite as much zeal manifested in some of the companies, as there has been, still, so far, no company has disbanded, or proposed to disband, but on the contrary, new companies have been raised.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,
GEO. S. EVANS,
Adjutant General, State of California.

COL. C. A. REED,
Adj't Gen., State of Oregon.

This shows that there is no tendency to let the organization decline in California. Then why should we in Oregon? Are we not equally exposed, and are not our interests co-equal with those of California?

The following communication from Maj. Gen. Meigs, is evidence that those in authority in the War Department have an interest in the Militia organization of Oregon:

[COPY.]

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27, 1865. }

COL. CYRUS A. REED,
ADJ'T GEN'L OF THE STATE OF OREGON,
SALEM, OREGON.

COLONEL:

Accept my thanks for the copy of the Report of the Adjutant General of the State of Oregon, for 1863-4.

Your arguments in favor of a proper military organization in your State, deserve, and will doubtless receive due consideration from the Legislature and the people.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
M. C. MEIGS,
Quartermaster General,
B't Maj. Gen'l.

I am well aware that, to a casual observer, the necessity for military organizations may seem superfluous when every village, town and hamlet is thronged to overflowing with returned veterans—soldiers whose fame shines bright on history's page—heroes, ready, should their country call, to spring to arms at a moment's warning; and this in one sense is true, yet therein lies the danger, not of to-day, but in the future; and I apprehend that if we allow our military system to go down at this time, and fail to secure good and thorough laws that will educate the youth of the present generation in the science of arms and the duties of the soldier, that we shall have at some future time to re-learn the lesson of the past four years. But how is this to be done? The old Militia organizations, we are well aware, were not effective, and in some States worse than useless.

The present law of Oregon is perhaps as good, or better than the Militia law of any State, if we except Kansas. There, every enrolled man is an effective soldier, but their law could not be enforced nor sustained in Oregon—the apparent necessity does not exist.

Shall our law be repealed, or shall it be amended? I believe that I have given this subject a careful, candid consideration. I have read and considered almost all of the Militia laws in the United States, and taking all things into consideration, I am convinced that it could be improved but little by amendment. Those amendments should be in obliging organized companies to go into camp and drill, and making every enrolled man liable to do military duty. I would recommend the purchase of uniforms for organized companies to be held as property of the State or company, and only to be worn when on duty. This would enable young men to join a military company without going to more expense than all they receive ; for, as much as has been said about the two dollars tax, there is not a soldier but what has paid more for uniform and camp expense than has been paid him.

The next question is on the repeal of the law. Are we prepared to do it? Are we willing to make this move in the dark? What State has no Militia law? Some say, strike out the two dollars poll tax—that done, and the law is effectually repealed. Some say, we have no need of military companies. I think no town or city should be without them. Should they meet and drill, and bear their expenses without recompense? Should not the people be willing to pay them for it? If so, what law could be more fair than to make those who should perform military duty and are not willing to, pay those who are willing to? I know that some are in favor of laying violent hands upon the military fund and diverting it to other uses. Does not the law creating that fund provide that it shall be used exclusively for military purposes? Then would it not be better to carry out the spirit and plan of the law? This should certainly be done, unless you repeal the law altogether.

If I have any further recommendations in the matter, I would say, petition Congress to pass some general militia law, and provide military teachers and officers, whose duty it shall be to put the law into effective operation. The particular plan of such a law does not come within the scope of this report. I think we have military genius enough in the Congress of the United States, at this time, to frame such a law. I would also recommend that a system of military training be introduced into our schools and colleges; let it be a part of the athletic and gymnastic exercises. There is no doubt in my mind that if this could be done we would be enabled to secure a general military knowledge to the rising generation that would be invaluable, and cultivate the habit of obedience and command so essential to the welfare of our community, and secure a physical development that could hardly be obtained in any other way. I do not propose to treat this subject at length, but merely call your attention to it, feeling that it is one of vital importance, and should not be overlooked.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE.

I cannot close this report without calling your attention to the accumulated labor devolved upon this office. The Militia law, which fixed the duties of the Adjutant General, and provided a salary for that service, never contemplated the amount of labor which has been assigned to this department. At the time of the passage of the law, Muster Rolls and Returns of troops in active service were not required to be made to the office of Adjutant Generals of the States, but by experience it was found necessary to do so, therefore a General Order was issued from the War Department, that a copy of all Muster Rolls, Muster in and Muster-out Rolls, be furnished to the Adjutant General of the State to which the regiment belonged.

The effect of this order increased the work of this office in considerable extent.

During the last session of the legislature, a law was passed for the relief of the commissioned officers and enlisted men of the Oregon volunteers in the service of the United States, and at the same session another law was passed granting bounties to the volunteers of this State, in both acts making it the duty of the Adjutant General to provide for all blanks, issue all certificates for bonds, and keep a proper record in his office of the details of the business connected therewith.

I have found it impossible to attend to any other business, as it has required my constant attention. In addition to this labor, a large correspondence originates. Soldiers desiring to obtain their bonds without coming to Salem; men desiring to purchase bonds, write for information; and I do not unfrequently receive from ten to twenty letters per day that require answering; and as officers are mustered out, and their residence becomes unknown at the War Department, this office is made a medium of correspondence, so that I find it almost impossible to do the business of the office without the assistance of a clerk, for which the law makes no provision; and I would here say that I am under many obligations to Brig. Gen. Alvord, late commander of the District of Oregon, in detailing 1st Lieut. J. L. Boone, Adjutant 1st Oregon Infantry, for a short time, to assist me in the duties of the office. And I would most respectfully represent that if the Oregon Volunteers are mustered out the coming Winter, that I shall be under the necessity of employing a clerk, or obtaining assistance in some way, the nature of the business requiring that it should be done correctly and in no haste.

I also hope and expect that the Legislature will deem it their duty to make some provision to reimburse me for the time I have spent for more than a year past. The laborer is certainly worthy of his hire; and as the legislature put this duty upon the Adjutant General, they should make some provision to pay him for that service. I do not, at this time, particularly recommend an increase of the salary of the Adjutant General, although it is quite too low for the amount of duty required, and not at all in keeping with the amount paid the like officers in other States. California pays her Adjutant General three thousand dollars per annum, while the State of Nevada, with not as large a military organization as that of Oregon, pays two thousand dollars a year to her Adjutant General. But what I now ask in all justice is a special appropriation to pay for the large amount of extra duty assigned to this office.

CONCLUSION.

For your further information, I have compiled and set forth the following Schedules, viz:

SCHEDULE A.

Roster of the Commissioned Officers of the 1st Battalion, Oregon Cavalry, since the consolidation of 1st Regiment Oregon Cavalry.

SCHEDULE B.

Roster of the Commissioned Officers of the 1st Regiment Oregon Infantry, with the number of enlisted men of each Company appended.

SCHEDULE C.

Roster of the Commissioned Officers of the Division, Oregon Volunteer Militia. But few of the Company Rolls of organized companies for the year 1865, have been received at this office.

SCHEDULE D.

The Enrolled Militia of the State for 1864. As per returns made by County Clerks to this office; showing the Enrolled Militia for that year to be 11,594.

SCHEDULE E.

Abstract of Arms, Ammunition, Ordnance Stores and Military Property received by me during the year; how and to whom issued, showing the amount now on hand; and I would here remark that the arms in the hands of the county officers other than appears in this Schedule, remain as in my report for 1864.

An Abstract of Camp and Garrison Equipage is also included.

SCHEDULE F.

Vouchers audited and allowed by the Board of Military Auditors for 1864-5

SCHEDULE G.

Certificates issued from shis office for Relief Bonds for Commissioned Officers and Enlisted Men of the 1st Oregon Cavalry, showing the number and amount of each Certificate, and to whom issued.

SCHEDULE H.

Certificates for the first instalment of Bounty issued to the 1st Regiment Oregon Infantry, showing the whole number of Certificates issued, and the amount to each Company.

Hoping a continuation of that kindly feeling which has characterized all our official intercourse, not only with your Excellency, but with all whom I have had official business,

I have the honor to remain,

Very respectfully your ob't serv't,

CYRUS A. REED,
Adj. Gen. State of Oregon
